Re: Moog's Efforts to Interfere with Skyrise's Supplier Relationships

Counsel:

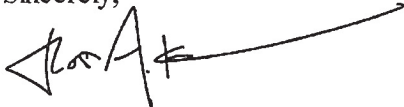

I write on behalf of Skyrise to address Moog's apparent efforts to interfere with Skyrise's supplier relationships.

It has come to Skyrise's attention that Moog has improperly contacted certain aviation suppliers to threaten them in the event they work with Skyrise—including by threatening to terminate Moog's relationships with the suppliers if they also work with Skyrise. It has also come to Skyrise's attention that Moog has contacted certain aviation suppliers to discern whether they are working with Skyrise—presumably to determine whether to then take steps to interfere with any existing or prospective relationship between the supplier and Skyrise. These efforts by Moog to intentionally interfere with, and damage, Skyrise's existing and prospective relationships with aviation suppliers must cease immediately. If it does not, Skyrise will not hesitate to pursue legal action against Moog for this tortious conduct.

Of course, it should go without saying that the pending litigation between the parties involves both confidential and highly confidential information belonging to Skyrise and other defendants that must not be disclosed to—let alone used to interfere with Skyrise's relationships with—these suppliers or any other third parties.

Nothing herein shall constitute a waiver of Skyrise's rights, claims, or remedies, all of which are expressly reserved.

Sincerely,

Josh A. Krevitt
